

Dream of traveling to France to cook? Well, this summer France is coming to you!

Susan Herrmann Loomis of On Rue Tatin, internationally recognized chef and cookbook author, is coming to Portland to share her love of France and her expertise in French cooking through hands-on cooking classes at In Good Taste:

August 12-15, 2009

www.onruetatin.com

Don't miss this chance as Susan, a favorite at In Good Taste, guides you in the preparation of authentic French dishes, using the finest local and seasonal ingredients procured just for you. With her focus on French technique and her joy in the kitchen, a good time will be had by all as you prepare, then sit down to enjoy, your authentic French meal.

These very special classes, which include wine tastings, market visits, restaurant visits, four hands-on classes with meals and more is filling up quickly, so please enroll now.

Call toll free: 1.866.369.8073

or email: cookingclasses@onruetatin.com

Cost is $950USD per person per three day class; fee includes cooking classes, market visit, instruction and multi-course meals, with cheeses and wines.

ABOUT SUSAN HERRMANN LOOMIS - As an internationally-recognized expert on food, journalist, and trained chef, Susan has a depth of knowledge and an appreciation for the rich traditions around food. Susan believes that learning about cooking and food should involve much more than recipes and techniques. She delights in meeting and introducing the personalities and customs behind the great cuisines of France, where she has lived for twenty years. Susan is the author of six cookbooks, the most recent of which is Cooking at Home On Rue Tatin (William Morrow).